New Partnership between Steinberg and Celemony

Steinberg and Celemony partner up to bundle Tonalic essential with Cubase Pro 15, Cubase Artist 15, and Nuendo 15.

HAMBURG, Germany — Steinberg today announced a collaboration with Celemony to include Tonalic essential, a selection of acoustic and electric guitars by Celemony, in the newly released maintenance update, version 15.0.30, for Steinberg's DAWs, Cubase Pro 15, Cubase Artist 15, and Nuendo 15.

Celemony's Tonalic is an innovative music production platform that combines performances by world-class musicians with the power of the Tonalic Engine. Drawing on authentic studio recordings, Tonalic intelligently adapts every performance to a song's chords, tempo, and groove, delivering natural, expressive results in real time.

Now available in version 15.0.30 for Cubase Pro, Cubase Artist, and Nuendo, Tonalic essential offers a carefully curated collection of acoustic and electric guitars, providing songwriters and producers with an inspiring toolkit for rapid composition, arrangement, and the creation of rich, organic musical textures.

“We’re pleased to be partnering up with Celemony and are happy to offer Tonalic essential to our Cubase and Nuendo 15 customers for free. With its guitar performances, Tonalic essential fits nicely in the comprehensive tool set provided by Cubase and Nuendo,” says Senior Marketing Manager Matthias Quellmann.

Availability

Celemony Tonalic essential is part of the maintenance update 15.0.30 released today. Cubase Pro 15, Cubase Artist 15, and Nuendo 15 users receive the license via the Voucher section in MySteinberg and are required to register with Celemony.
